CLAY COUNTY SUPERVISOR OF ELECTIONS INDUCTED AS FLORIDA STATE ASSOCIATION OF SUPERVISORS OF ELECTIONS PRESIDENT

Chris H. Chambless, Clay County Supervisor of Elections, was sworn in as the 2016-2017 President of the Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections (FSASE) at the 2016 Annual Summer Conference this week by Secretary of State Ken Detzner. President Chambless succeeds outgoing president Brian Corley of Pasco County.

Upon taking the helm, Chambless shared his enthusiasm, “this excitement I am referring to, is our success as we continue to shape the way we professionally administer elections in Florida. Like no other time in history, other stakeholders; Legislators, Bill Drafters, and Bipartisan groups, are seeking out this association and its membership in crafting effective policy and sound legislation to breed positive change on a host of elections related issues.”

Chambless closed his speech with a charge to his fellow Supervisors, “It would be easy for us to sit back and rest on the past accomplishments of this organization, but I am asking you to dig deep and press on, devoting yourselves to the work at hand.”

FSASE was founded in 1964 as a professional membership organization representing the Supervisors of Elections of Florida’s 67 counties with the goal to apply the highest ethical standards, integrity and professionalism, and avoid even the appearance of impropriety in the conduct of Florida elections.
